Why did I choose to study computer science for my bachelor's degree?

I have consistently had an interest in math and technology, even in middle school. I fostered an enthusiasm for computers and coding in secondary school. My interest in coding was provoked by a random YouTube video that I watched, which spurred me to observe more. Thus, I began figuring out how to code in 10th grade and am currently doing so. I became mindful that it was some kind of creation as I was examining it. In the twelfth grade, my enthusiasm drove me to pick computer science as my major, which improved my insight into the field. My capacity to get a handle on technical and coding-related sections immediately empowered me to perform well on tests. I perceived how significant this field is to the progression of both the world and society overall. Since individuals all over the planet make various sorts of technological creations, this kept me considering the work possibilities in the area.

I continued my research into computer science careers in India and other countries while keeping this passion in mind. The way that an individual with proficient skills can fill countless various positions really amazed me. I was spurred to such an extent that I decided to pursue a bachelor's in computer science at a renowned university to assist me in preparing for a challenging professional life.

What prompted me to choose Canada over India and other countries?

I figured out how different India is from different countries while I was studying here. One of my senior schoolmates, who studies in the UK, clarified for me how different the schooling system in India is in contrast with other countries. My openness to the world and knowledge regarding the subject can both be improved by studying abroad. I'm confident that studying with people who have common interests and objectives from around the world will provide me with outstanding expertise and perspectives in the domain that I will utilize to establish a solid platform for my future. Besides, I found that global organizations place more significance on teaching understudies with a practice-oriented approach, though the Indian educational system lacks the practical view of the subject. I subsequently settled on the choice to acquire a degree from a prestigious college overseas.

I had a few options while searching for the best college for my studies, including Australia, the USA, New Zealand, Canada, and so on. However, I discovered that, with the exception of Canada, the cost of living and studying abroad was astronomically high. So I went with the choice to explore Canada as a potential study abroad destination. I understood that Canada offers both affordable and top-notch education. Canada has a totally different learning environment than other nations. My choice to make it final was affected by the charming social perspectives, solid laws, and affiliations with various top IT firms from across the world.

For what reason did I choose XYZ College?

I have been determined to find a college that emphasizes a realistic, student-focused approach since I decided to study in Canada. After much looking, I settled upon XYZ College, one of Canada's best colleges, famous for its exclusive requirements and down-to-earth approach to education. My choice to pick XYZ College was solidified by the positive reviews about the institution. Likewise, I have found that the college has experienced faculty. With the wide academic design and the resources, I have certainty that I will get the direction I want to become the individual I desire to be.

Besides, I have found how well the college utilizes a set of dynamic and involved teaching systems, including conversations, talks, exercises, and PowerPoint presentations. While I'm working, this will without a doubt give me different capacities to match the necessities of the market.

Beyond a shadow of a doubt, the institution's numerous internship possibilities would permit me to upgrade my abilities and foster new points of view in the business that will make me the individual I want to be.

Financial details

I have already taken the steps necessary to cover all of the costs associated with my studies. Being financially secure, my father will be able to support all of my expenses while I am in Canada. For your reference, the documents related to the aforementioned are also included with the statement.
